Working wonders for our new arrivals in Canada...

"As an Iraqi Christian, the Office for Refugees (ORAT) has provided me with the opportunity to meet other people who have experienced the same thing that I have. We are able to help support each other in this new journey to Canada and without ORAT, I do not know where I would be today. It is possible I would still be in Jordan, afraid for my life, unable to practice my religion, and under threat of deportation. The work that ORAT did truly gave me hope and a chance at life free from persecution and fear. ORAT has also invited me to volunteer with them, and I am even able to sponsor a new person or family to come to Canada with their help."

—Sara, a Christian refugee from Iraq.

Since 2009, ShareLife-supported ORAT has sponsored over 2,500 families to be resettled in the GTA.

You can work wonders!

For the past four weeks we have been basking in the glow of the Resurrection. However, the readings today convey a simple but urgent message directly related to living out one's Christian mission. The account from Acts sounds like a travelogue instead of what it really is: a description of the birth of the early Church. The faith of the early Christians represents the miraculous movement from disbelief and confusion to faith and order, a passage to which so many of us can relate as our faith grows and matures. How do we participate in the building of "a new heaven and a new earth" today? The gospel prepares us for this overwhelming task. There is a poignant moment when Jesus tells his disciples, "I am with you only a little longer." What a blow for his friends and family. It is easy to imagine them asking each other: How will we manage? What will we do? How can we go on? But Jesus gives the perfect answer to all their questions –and ours: "I give you a new commandment, that you love one another." This is often much easier said than done. Yet it is precisely this love for each other which marks us not only as disciples of Christ but as ordinary people who seek to bring about the kingdom of God on earth in this day and age.
