Bookstore shelves today are lined with titles on self-improvement, building self-esteem and assertiveness skills, and how to win. Smartphones put the world at our fingertips. We get impatient when we don't immediately get what we want or have to wait in line. Jesus says that in his kingdom the last will be first and those who pushed their way to the front will be relegated to the cheap seats. Jesus is radical in his challenge as he faces the powerbrokers of his time. Put others ahead of yourself and reach out to those who can't necessarily reciprocate. As I try to apply this teaching, I realize it's asking a lot of me. How I operate socially and whom I invite to dinner indicate the type of person I am. How I move from self-centeredness to being other-centered is a challenge. As my relationship with God grows, I realize he loves me. I am developing a healthier acceptance of my strengths and limitations. At this Eucharist I give thanks that God dwells with me. I don't need to be first in line; I don't need the best seat in the house. The knowledge that God loves me unconditionally allows me to let others cut in front without my getting upset.
