

The Most Holy Body and Blood of Christ

Reflection

“Food for body and soul” is the tagline for my ministry on a university campus. We serve a lot of free meals in a hospitable setting and the campus food bank is in our building. It is my hope that when more demanding situations arise, students and others on campus will remember the Chaplaincy Centre as a place of comfort and consolation. Our ministry tagline may not be original, but it is a sequel to the first invitation to food for body and soul found in the Gospel of John.

Today’s Gospel offers the source of that food and it is Jesus. Earlier in John’s Gospel, some disciples complain; in today’s text, they dispute among themselves, asking how this can be. What is meant to unite us can cause division, even today. How do I approach the table? Who else comes to the table with me? When disputes arise, we must not lose sight of the gift and the Giver. Jesus offers us not only living bread but eternal life.

St. Paul invites us to remember that, though many, we are one. Very truly, we are reminded, may we be grateful. Today, may I leave my questions and my disputes at the door so that I – so that we – may live forever.

Thank You Fr. Jacek

This Sunday, we bid farewell to Fr. Jacek Nosowicz, our pastor of three years, who will now serve of the Provincial of Missionary Oblates of Mary Immaculate, Assumption Province. We thank Fr. Please remember that the Rosary Garden is a place of prayer. To maintain the aesthetics of the place, we ask that you refrain from any decorative works in the grotto and its surroundings. Any and all initiatives should be consulted with the Pastor of our parish. Lighting of candles is also prohibited.

Church Attire

The Mass is a stupendous miracle, and those who partake of the heavenly banquet are tremendously privileged. Polite decorum and appropriate attire are simply one way of acknowledging this privilege. With the summer weather just around the corner, please be mindful of what you wear to church.
